

Refashioned Runway

Laura Pitock of Dewey Lake raised $2,000 in donations for the Salvation Army in a models' fundraising challenge. She raised the most of all the models.

Stephanie Bardswell modeled in all five categories to demonstrate that trendy, name-brand, and fashionable clothes can be found at the Salvation Army store for families in need.

“Forty-nine and a half years ago my mom pulled me and my sister into the Salvation Army in Ypsilanti and asked for help. We were always safe at Salvation Army.”

Salvation Army: Same mission, different method

As bell ringing fundraising has declined over the years, Salvation Army officials have been looking for new ways to support their mission. One way, it turns out, is the runway, or the Refashioned Runway, to be precise.

A red bucket and a ringing bell have been the go-to method of fundraising for years for the Salvation Army. However, the method's effectiveness has declined over the years, which prompted Adrian's Board of Directors: a 2026 Refashioned Runway event, which took place Thursday, September 24, at First United Methodist Church in Adrian. Guests purchased a $25 entrance ticket, which automatically entered them into raffles. Items for a silent auction lined the back wall, and food was available, cooked by Jerry Graitt of Adrian, who cooks twice a week for the homeless. Concession servers were board members Bryan Bowers of Adrian and John Krebs of Tecumseh.

At 6 p.m., Major Laura Lunnam shared her feelings about why the Salvation Army has long been special to her. “Forty-nine and a half years ago my mom pulled me and my sister into the Salvation Army in Ypsilanti and asked for help,” Lunnam explained of the organization. “They helped us get our lives together. We were always safe at Salvation Army.”

Working in Lenawee County for the past four years, Lunnam explained to the crowd, “My goal is to make it a safe place for everyone who walks through the door. That is what you are funding today.” She described the night's objective as being “about celebrating people, community, second chances, and the difference we can make when we come together.”

The main part of the evening was the red carpet refashioned runway. Models pre-selected their entire outfit from the Adrian Salvation Army store to wear in up to five themed categories. While working the outfits, models were judged for best of each category. Judges included Janis Montalvo, broker/owner and co-founder of Living in Lenawee Realty in Tecumseh, District Court Judge Todd Morgan, and Joe Johns of The Jo-Jo Show on 103.9 WLEN, Q-95 Country, WABJ, and Lenawee TV.

During each of the runway walks, Major Lunnam, as the emcee, revealed the total cost of each ensemble and which parts were major brand names.

The oldest volunteer model was Robert Ulrich at 87 years old, while the youngest model was “Alaina” approximately age 4. Among the several special community volunteer models were also the 2026 Lenawee County Fair Queen Sydney Cunningham as well as Miss Great Lakes 2026, Kirsten Krause.

During outfit changeovers, raffle tickets were drawn for prizes donated from both the community as well as a few pulled from the Salvation Army store. There was also additional last-minute voting for each model who were in a friendly competition to raise the most donations. At the close of the donation time allotment, it was revealed Laura Pitock of Onsted brought in the most—$2,000.

Regarding the event, Major Lunnam shared she felt “Everything came together perfectly,” even though she was a bit nervous because it was their first time throwing such an affair.

Their goal was to fundraise but also to increase sales at the thrift store by improving awareness of the name brands and variety of clothing available for people of all ages and needs.

The organization has been supporting Lenawee County residents for almost 130 years. Services include emergency food pantry products, hot meals, fresh food initiatives, financial and utility assistance, seasonal programs, thrift store access, and employment placement assistance, among others.

Per their website, the international Salvation Army is “an evangelical part of the universal Christian Church. Its message is based on the Bible. Its ministry is motivated by the love of God. Its mission is to preach the gospel of Jesus Christ and to meet human needs in His name without discrimination.”

The primary location for The Salvation Army Adrian Corps Community Center in Lenawee County is at 217 W. Church St., Adrian, MI 49221 (Phone: 517-265-2038).

Community volunteer Ramon Garcia dazzled the crowd with his modeling showmanship and brightened Emcee Major Laura Lunnam's day.

The eldest fashion model was Robert Ulrich, 87 years old, a community volunteer.

Melissa Tsuji, director of the Greater Lenawee Chamber, and her husband, Dr. Jun Tsuji, director of the Health Studies Institute at Adrian College, launched the modeling event.

This week, more than 20 students at Onsted elementary and middle schools began receiving congratulatory emails from Usha Vance, Second Lady of the United States. These students participated in her summer reading challenge.

The challenge began in the spring when teachers Jessica Tillotson and Tina Slater shared the opportunity with their summer reading club. Slater shared, “About half of the students began the reading challenge during Onsted’s Out of School Summer Programs while other students were told about the challenge when we started school on August 24th as a booster to get kids excited to be back at school and read again.”

As each student indicated interest and permission, the teachers submitted the paperwork for them to enter the challenge. Students in grades K-8 were eligible. The mission was to read twelve books of their own choice between June 1 and September 4. Students had to record the title and author on a reader’s log and add a personal reflection for each book read. These were uploaded to the national contest center.

Incentives for completing the challenge included receiving a personalized letter, a digital certificate to download, an America-250th themed bookmark, the ability to select an additional prize from the website, and the chance to win a trip to the White House and the nation’s Capital on September 25.

Slater commented, “The instruction for this challenge had a very clear and intentional sentence. Every book counts...which is important for children. Students chose books because they were interested in the topic or the story looked interesting. They were not trying to meet any type of metric. The experience was to find joy in reading. I would say it was successful.”

A variety of material intrigued the students who chose materials from the school libraries. These ranged from picture books, chapter books, non-fiction informational guides, graphic novels, and biographies.

Third-grader Avery Monnich recommended We Are All Wonders by R.J. Palacio, because, she said, “I am a wonder too.”

Fourth-grader Sadie Lewis shared, “I had a lot of fun with this challenge. I read a lot of biographies that I had never read before and learned a lot about people in history that I didn’t know before.”

The fifth graders all read biographies. Oliver Schultz enjoyed his reads on Johnny Appleseed and George Washington. Braylin Monnich was intrigued to learn about Rosa Parks, while Emery Monnich had no hesitation saying she most enjoyed reading about Helen Keller.

Slater noted the challenge heightened reading enthusiasm overall. “The students were so excited about reading. It felt like August and September were reading months! So often we wait until March to celebrate reading, but this reading challenge was the best way to say goodbye to summer and kick off the new school year.”

Fifth graders who completed the summer reading challenge were Oliver Schultz, Braylin Monnich, and Emery Monnich.

~A Look Back~

By Michelle McLemore

Uphill, both ways

Part of the legend has been proven! These children were recorded walking uphill to, or from, school. A few had the luxury to carry books, but most have their own metal lunch pails.

By the look on their faces, one has to wonder if they are on their way home to explain some incident to their folks. Or perhaps, by the size of the hills in the background, they might simply have been tuckered out. What do you think is the cause of their melancholy expressions?

This photo is part of the artifact collection Bob and Sandy Mottice have accrued on their E. Pleasant Lake Road historical village property. It hangs in the Sharon Township, 1870 District Number 6 one-room school building they moved to their property.

If you have photos, scrap-books, postcards, or other historical items that may be shared, we would love to see them. Contact The Exponent office to arrange a time or email unique photos with any information you have about the content to exponews@theexponent.com. In the subject line, please note for "Attic & Hearth" or "For Michelle" and include your name and contact information in the message.

Peek-a-boo!

NOT-SO-CANDID CAMERA: Michelle McLemore caught this Street View Google Map car driver taking a break at Yoder's Market near Brooklyn last week. McLemore noted that while the driver was friendly, he was not particularly forthcoming with the process of capturing our communities on camera from the street level.
